An inquisitive little fellow wants to know what it was like when his grandmother was young? Were there computers and cellphones, garbage disposals, microwaves, dishwashers, etc.? How did they manage? It was a special occasion. My grandmother was visiting during my summer vacation. As she sat in a chair drinking her tea It suddenly occurred to me Ill bet things were not the same when you were young. How were they different? I asked. I thought this would be fun. Well, she said, as she took her nose out of her book. We prepared food in a different way when my mother would cook. Lets go in the kitchen and Ill see what I remember. I thought of all the kitchen gadgets we had, as I followed her in there. From one generation to the next, everything, he found, was different everything except one. What could that be? Youll have to read the book to find out. Be sure to take a peek at WHATS PETES SECRET another adorable book by Sally Huss.
