

The Mummy of Mulberry Avenue

Something was watching him. Something was glowing in the unnaturally deep shadow beneath the wooden bench that spanned the back of the cubicle. A red-hot coal. An eye! It seemed to sear into his brain, sucking out his energy...as though to draw him by degrees into its fiery vortex... When Katie decides to mummify her dead, pet goldfish she has no idea what she has started. For then there is a theft ...and an ancient and malevolent power is unwittingly unleashed to hunt down her brother, Josh. Can Katie, Josh and Andy discover an antidote before it is too late? And why is it so vital to find the writer of the mysterious book..? `At times the book made me laugh out loud...I cant remember the last time I enjoyed reading an unpublished story so much.
